CHAPIN AND THE BRIDGE THE FIRST MESSAGE OF THE NEW MAYOR OF BROOKLYN.

Whether the Trustees Have a Questions Whether the Antironding Business. Alfred C. Chapin, the new Mayor of Brooklyn, reappointed Corporation Counsel Almet F. Jenks and City Treasurer Adam D. Whee yesterday, and each was sworn in. Mr. Jenka. who is a son of the late Granville T. Jenks. once the leader of the Brooklyn bar, was Assistant District Attorney under Mr. Ridgway before his appointment as Corporation Coun sel by Mayor Whitney two years ago. He is a son-in-law of Bishop Littlejohn, and is a mem-ber of the Brooklyn and Oxford Clubs. He began political life as a Republican, but long before he had any aspirations for office joined the victorious Democracy. City Treasurer Wheelock is a Republican and a leading member of Plymouth Church. He had been Deputy Treasurer for several years before his appoint ent by Mayor Whitney. Mr. Jenks and Mr. Wheelock have reappointed their present sub-ordinates. The Mayor would not indicate yesterday what changes, if any, he would make in the heads of the other departments, but it is generally expected that before the close of the month the names of several new Commissioners will be announced.

The first meeting of the new Board of Aldermen, which consists of fifteen Democrats and four Republicans, was held in the afternoon, Alderman Murphy's desk was decorated with a mammoth floral horseshoe, presented by the Hugh Bonner Council American Order of Firemen, of which the Alderman is a member.

Alderman John McCarty, the Democratic sidered the handsomest member of the Board, was made President by a unanimous vote, an almost unprecedented honor. City Clerk John Shanley and Messenger John M. Gray were also unanimously reappointed.

Aldermen McGarry, Black, and Smith were appointed a committee to walt on the Mayor, and they soon returned with his first annual message, which was read by Clerk Shanley. In the message the Mayor says the city's net debt is $32.014.502, a decrease from Dec. 21, 1886, of $747,000, and that the present valuation of city The extent to which the city's high credit

The extent to which the city's high credit has been made useful is shown by the fact that of the outstanding debt $5.799.237 bears interest at 4 per cent., $2,393,305 bears interest at 3 per cent. and $2,167.500 bears interest at 3 per cent. and $2,167.500 bears interest at 3 per cent. The citizen, the Mayor says, should be absolutely assured that his money is not devoted to non-governmental purposes nor wasted. The responsibility for such assurance rests upon the Aldermen, upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and upon himself. The taxpayer, he says, may be reasonably sure that the present seems to be a favorable season for expending public moneys. The results secured in erecting new buildings and in similar outlays are far superior to those following an equal outlay not many years ago. So far as it may lie in his power he will endeavor to increase the accommodations and resources of the school system.

The reports of the Departments of Fire and Diller make it does not be the Mayor that the following an equal outlay not many years ago. Bo far as it may lie in his power he will endeavor to increase the accommodations and resources of the school system.

The reports of the Departments of Fire and Police make it clear to the Mayor that the forces of each of these departments should be enlarged. All varieties of public revenue should flow to a common centre, or treasury, from which all payments should be made. The fact that the Brooklyn portion of the bridge receipts is kept by the bridge officials instead of being handed to the City Trensurer is unfortunate. Undoubtedly, he says, the bridge would be administered with more economy, and with a far keener sense of accountability to the people of the two cities who have mortgaged their property to pay for it, were its charge given to a body or organization possessing no such sutonomous or imperial character as that how existing. That this is not the language of everetatement must be clear when it is noted that, for the past liscal year, he says, the gross laceme was $935.281.21. And that the police force of the bridge numbers 96 men, that of the satire city besides being $229, including doterities. Whether the bridge organization should be permitted to go into the warchouse business, to run railroads, or to invest money in teal estate for purposes of rental, with but a elight direct opportunity for a hearing on the part of the city, may well be questioned.

The failure to pay larger sums to the city than it does, and especially to pay in each year a sufficient sum to at least meet the sinking fund contribution of $150.000, seems to him to be due to the belief that the trustees have power to invest bridge moneys to secure, as is affirmed, better and larger returns for the money. This polley seems open to two objections: First, it is apparently contrary to law; and, second, it promises to be endless. The process of investing and reinvesting seems to continually suggest new ways of profitably investing money in the hone of a return at some future and remote nish additional revenue to the city to meet, as far as might be, the annual charge of $706,600 new resting upon the city. He will insist that the bridge revenues be neither withheld nor hypothecated, and that no debt shall be creat-now resting upon the city. He will insist that the bridge revenues be neither withhold nor hypothecated, and that no debt shall be created by any roundabout process.

"It seems to me," he says, "that the true view of the bridge is that it is a complete structure; that any discretion possessed by the trustees is auxiliary merely to its operation, and that any legislative grant of discretion must be interpreted under this limitation. To assume that the powers granted to the trustees by the Legislature warrant the pledging of the bridge's future earnings for the purpose even of extending the structure, much more for the purpose of building a rallroad fributary to the terminus is equivalent to saying that the Legislature intended to pass enactments mutually destructive. The statutes under which the bridge was built clearly intended the city to derive from its operation all revenues not belonging to New York city and not consumed in maintenance, as that term is popularly understood. The statute of 1887 should be given such meaning and force as are consistent with the scheme of policy and legislations as the trustees propose to issue seem to me to be of doubtful validity, and, as related to the public treasury, to be of more than doubtful policy or rightulitiess. It seems to me that twould not be difficult to devise a method of bridge management which should piace that structure in charge of perhaps two officials—they to be subordinates of the two cities—and which should provide that all receipts should daily be turned in proper proportions into their respective treasuries, and that the expenses of maintenance should be met by an appropriation also in proper proportion. Such a method, besides being enay of application, would be far more business illie and economical than that how existing."

maintenance should be met by an appropriation also in proper proportion. Such a method, besides being enay of application, would be far more business like and economical than that now existing."

The new Mayor calls attention to the fact that, while in all other counties builots are destroyed immediately after the canvass is completed, in klugs county the ballots are preserved in the care of the Police Department, to be referred to if called for by any court of record. He says that those who see some peculiar virtue in the preservation of the ballots everlook the fact that we must in this as in all other political and governmental contrivances, depend upon human agency, and the more significant fact that the continuous custody of such important records suggests fraud and evil doing to many men, who have no such thought or desire while quickly performing the duty of canvassing and certifying votes upon election night. The officials who rapidly count votes upon election evening do not know what the relative importance of their district may be, and it is right that they should not. But the officials in charge of the ballot boxer, after the canvass is completed, may be constantly burdened with the knowledge that a slight transpering with two or three of them would serve to reverso the election of a Governor or of a President. The occasions upon which the ballots thus preserved have been produced in court did not lead to either decisive or salutary results. The occasion of a Governor or of a President. The occasion of the ballots and the recount in the trial court reversed the result as declared by the county canvassers; and in each case the appellate court, in its turn, reversed the result as declared by the county canvassers. Neither case, therefore, righted any wrong or cuted any defect. The isnutage of the Court of Appeals in the first of these cases indicates unmistakable distrust of such evidence and methods as are provided for by the law which commands the preservations of the ballots.

The Mayor favors a fou

officiate at any marriages. He made this announcement yesterday, when a fine-looking young German and a rosy-cheeked girl of 18 ealled at his office and requested him to marrithem. At the suggestion of the Mayor, the young couple went up stairs to Justice Courtney and had the conjugal knot tied.

President Henry-Harteau of the Board of Park Commissioners sent in his resignation yesterday to Mayor Chapin. He said he was very strongly impressed with the belief that the Board needed reorganization. Commissioner Anson Furguson, who was elected Alderman in November, and Commissioner Crossman Lyons have also resigned.

TO CLEAR OUT THE PIGEONHOLES.

Cases to be Expedited by the New District Atterney-Squire and the Boodlers. District Attorney Fellows was in his office bright and early yesterday morning, and he said to a Sun reporter:

"I agree with Mayor Hewitt when he says in the letter he sent me on Monday that the large accumulation of untried cases in the District Attorney's office is a reproach to the adminis tration of justice in this city. In many of these accumulated cases indictments should never have been found, and I do not believe that in twenty per cent. of the 5,000 untried excise cases there was evidence enough to convict. Indictments should not be found when there is not sufficient proof to convict. The result of having so many ex-cise cases hung up in the District At-torney's office is that saloon keepers will break the law and take the chances of conviction. They have had four chances out of five to get off, and it is a direct encouragement to violate the excise laws.

They have had four chances out of five to get off, and it is a direct encouragement to violate the excise laws.

"I have devised a plan by which I hope to have all of the cases that come to the District Attorney's office disposed of as fast as they arrive. We do not need to have two Grand Juries sitting at once. One has furnished more work than the office could attend to, because our force was not large enough. Now our force has been enlarged, and my plan is to establish a trial bureau in the District Attorney's office, which shall constantly be occupied with silting the merits of cases as they come from the police magistrates. The bureau will consist of several members of the staff. Witnesses will be summoned in each case, and a thorough investigation will be made before any case is presented to the Grand Jury. If my assistants decide that the evidence is insufficient, then the case will be recommended to the Grand Jury for dismissal, but with a list of the witnesses, with their addresses, so that the Grand Jury may investigate. If the case is fit for trial, a synopsis of the facts and the witnesses, names will be furnished to the Grand Jury. I think this plan will work to great advantage in keeping new cases from piling up. It will also simplify the trial of cases. In the way now in use the assistants trying the cases have to feel their way, and at the end they frequently are compelled to ask for an acquittal. A few weeks will determine whether the scheme will work." What about the trials of the twenty men woeks will determine whether the scheme will work."

"What about the trials of the twenty men held in the Tombs for murdor?"

"I intend to move to bring back to the General Sessions from the Oyer and Terminer the case of Longobardi for the murder of young Barrett, and, as I was assigned to the case by District Attorney Martine, I will try it myself. There will be as little delay as possible in the remaining cases.

"As to the trial of Rollin M. Squire, who is said to be eager to be tried, he shall be tried. I shall oppose a motion to dismiss the case from the Oyer and Terminer. Of course I shall require a reasonable time to prepare for the trial. The papers are already in the hands of an Assistant District Attorney, Mr. Squire's and Maurice B. Fiynn's trials will both be pushed."

and Maurice B. Flynn's trials will both be pushed."

"About the boodle cases?"

"I think in the new boodle trials," Col. Fellows replied. "we should wait before we act until some disposition is made of the cases of O'Neil and McQuade. O'Neil's case is before the Court of Appeals, and there are some points in it which were not in the Jachne appeal. Until O'Neil's case is decided it would be foolish in us to proceed. Mr. Semple will argue the case of O'Neil before the Court of Appeals, and I will probably be there to argue myself. I expect there will be a decision in a few weeks."

"Will you proceed soon in the matter of Gould and Sage?"

"I have sent for the papers and will decide

"Will you proceed soon in the matter of Gould and Sige?"

I have sent for the papers and will decide what is to be done. Let me add in general concerning the conduct of the office that I think that there are very few cases which the Grand Jury should be called upon to consider in the first instance. Every man should have a chance to defend himself, and the place for that is before a police magistrate."

All three parts of the General Sessions began yesterday the task of punishing criminals for the year 1888. Edward E. Poor, a Worth street dry goods merchant, is foroman of the General Sessions Grand Jury for January.

HIS PHILOSOPHY OF GIVING.

Mr. Keyser Belleves that a Man Should East Mr. John H. Keyser, the stove man, who opened a free restaurant for the poor and gave away meals to all who came until his funds were exhausted, is grieved at the protest made against his action by the members of different charitable societies in the city. He says that he has been watching the poor for fifty years. and knows more about them than the men who and knows more about them than the men who are making the protest. When The SUN reporter called at his store in Bockman street yesterday Mr. Keyser had just come from the General Sessions Court, where he had been summoned as a juror.

"But I wasn't compelled to serve," he said, with a smile. "I told the Judge that I couldn't conscientiously serve. He said he wouldn't ask me to sit in murder cases, but that I couldn't have any scruples in other cases. I told him he was mistaken. If a man is put on trial. I said, 'tor stealing bread because he was hungry, I wouldn't find him guilty. If a man stole because his family was in need, I wouldn't find him guilty. Neither would I if it was his first offence. I've had five apprentices who stole from me. I dain't have 'em arrested, and four of them are prosperous merchants now,'

"You may go,' the Judge told me, and I went.
"Now for this letter, I can say that I don't

"You may go," the Judge told me, and I went.
"Now for this letter, I can say that I don't believe 2,000 men would be tempted to get up in the gray of the early morning for a can of coffee and some bread if they were not hungry. A confidential man who was there examined them and found them nearly all hard-working men. I had fifteen men working for me a short time ago. Now I can only employ two. Other merchants have had the same experience. What becomes of the thirteen? Besides, even if tramps are hungry they have a right to be fed as long as they're on this earth. It might be worth while to find out why they are tramps. There's no charity in kicking a man because he's down. I maintain that there are 5,000 honest men in this city who can't get work, and who are unable to get a decent meal."

Haven't Found Those Blamonds Yet. Deputy Sheriff Lavery, who is in charge of the store of Payne, Steck & Co., wholesale jewellers, at 177 Broadway, received two more atellers, at 177 Broadway, received two more attachments yestorday in favor of the Appleton & Tracey Watch Company for $3.500, and in favor of Frank Keller for $2.513. Write of replevin have been served on the Sheriff in favor of Keller & Freyfor diamonds which cannot be found, and by J. W. Hichardson for Masonic emblems which have been returned to him. Neither partner has been at the store yet. Mr. Payne on the day of the failure informed some of the clerks, it is said, that he had lost the firm's money in outside speculation. In making an inventory of the assets it is said that no memorandum bills of the diamonds have been found on the books. The Sheriff's sale is advertised to take place to-day at 11 o'clock.

Policeman John Mara of the West 152d street squad sent word to Capt, Moses Cortright on Monday night that he was sick, and right on Monday night that he was sick, and wished to be relieved. Mara was on post in 155th street. The Captain found Mara holding on to a telegraph pole. The Captain charged him with being drunk.

"Who shays I'm drunk?" sputtered Mara, "Yournliar. Halloo, Cap! Zat you? Wisher Hampy New Year!

The Captain took him to the station. There Mara became abusive. Yesterday morning Capt. Cortright appeared against Mara in the Harlem Police Court, and he was held in $300 bail for examination. Capt. Cortright also made formal charges against Mara to Superintendent Marray, and they were forwarded by the latter to the Commissioners. The man will be tried to-day.

Cold Waves

Are predicted with reliable accuracy, and people liable to the pains and aches of rheumatism dread every change to damp or stormy weather. Although we do not claim ifcon's sarsaparitate to a positive specific for rhaumatism, the remarkable cures it has affected show that it may be taken for rhaumatism with reasonable certainty of benefit. Its action in neutralizing the acid ity of the blood, which is the cause of rheumatism con-stitutes the secret of the success of Hood's Saraparilla in curing this complaint. If you suffer from rheumatism give Hood's Saraaparilla a fair trial; we believe it will do you good.

"I suffered a long time with rheumatism in my left arm and shoulder, my blood being in a very low con-dition. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparitla, and I did so with great success. SHIPPED FOR A SEA FOYAGE, MAY BE. The Missing Clergyman Leved the Sea, and May Have Made for the Wharves,

Members of the Protestant Episcopal Mission Church of the Reformation in Stanton street called yesterday on the Rev. J. G. Faw cett, now in charge of the parish, and volunsecred to hunt all over town for their pastor the Rev. Edward F. Miles, who has been missing since Friday. They were added to the body already on the search. The cottage he had at Rockaway last summer has been visited, but it rielded no clue. Inquiry at the insane asylume and hospitals and at Blackwell's Island has and hospitals and at Blackwell's Island has been fruitless.

The crucifixes tattooed on the clergyman's arms are relies of his life at sea. Mrs. Miles said yesterday that her husband, who served twenty years in the British navy, had more than a sailor's love for the sea, and she thinks it barely possible that, with some confused idea that an ocean journey would be good for his health, he wandered to the wharves and shipped on a snilling vessel. He can turn his hand to almost anything on shipboard, and could have talked any Captain into full belief in his sblittles as a mariner.

Mr. Fawcett said that besides some small sum of money, not much more nor less than $10, Mr. Miles had nothing valuable with him except his gold watch. He could not, therefore, have gone on any long journey unless he pawned his watch, and this would be unlikely. His wardrobe shows that nothing has been taken from it.
